Urges Need For Unity Of Three Faiths

The immediate need for all American groups to formulate programs designed to "enable 150,000,000 Americans of diverse religions, national origins and racial stocks to live together in peace and understanding" was emphasized by American Jewish leaders. Particular stress on this need was made by Dr. John Slawson, authority on inter-group relations and executive vice-president of the American Jewish Committee, at the forty-fourth annual conference at the Commodore Hotel, in New York, before 500 delegates.

Dr. Slawson asserted that to a large measure many vexing problems confronting the world could be attributed to "faulty human relations." In pointing to the current existing international tensions, Dr. Slawson underscored the need for understanding and cooperation between the major religious groups of America.

"Regardless," he continued, "of our theological differences, there are areas of agreement in which Protestants, Catholics and Jews can and must work together to assure the national unity that we so urgently need at this time. For all religions are inextricably linked together by their common regard for the dignity of the individual and the sanctity of the human spirit."

At a round-table discussion the delegates pointed to the dangers of the "rebirth of a militarized Germany under the old, unregenerate leadership," and cited the necessity for the Western powers to develop a plan to assure proper controls of German military strength and the formation of a German Army committed to democratic ideals.

William A. Zeck, vice-chairman of the Committee's branch on Germany, declared that "too many of [illegible] at Potsdam, remain partially or wholly undone; it is hoped that the United States will take the initiative, in conjunction with a peace treaty with Western Germany, in sponsoring a continuing program of education and democratization."

In recognizing the necessity of giving Western Germany military protection, Mr. Zeck, however, asserted that "the dangers of a rearmed, self-governing but badly under-educated German state must not be overlooked by the Western democracies."

At another panel, the delegates dealt with the status of Jews in the Moslem countries of the Near East and North Africa and agreed that the American Jewish Committee should increase its efforts to facilitate the emigration to Israel of those Jews who seek to go there, and to help to improve the health, economic and legal status of those choosing to remain in their respective countries.

Leading the workshop discussion on "Education in Human Relations," Dr. Abraham N. Franzblau, member of the Federal Security Agency Commission, stressed the responsibility of the school for providing wholesome, realistic and informed preparation for living in a democratic society.

Messages of greeting were received from President Truman, Governor Dewey, Cardinal Spellman, Vice-President Alben W. Barkley, Mayor Impellitteri and other high city, state and Federal officials.

Was Authority On History Of U.S. Labor

Benjamin Stolberg, fifty-nine, one of the foremost authorities on the history and background of the labor movement in America, was found dead in his apartment at the Hotel Chelsea, 222 West Twenty-third Street, New York. Death apparently was due to natural causes.

Mr. Stolberg's most recent, and one of his most important books was "Tailor's Progress: the Story of a Famous Union and the Man who Made It," a history of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union, published in 1944. Before that he had published "The Economic Consequences of the New Deal," in collaboration with Warren Jay Vinton, in 1935; "The Story of the C. I. O.," in 1938, and "The Collapse of American Communism," in 1939. He also wrote articles for many magazines and newspapers.

Unlike many writers on ponderous subjects, Mr. Stolberg's work was marked by a brisk, almost racy style that made his volumes more than ordinarily readable. In fact, reviewers sometimes complained that he was not unwilling to gloss over or even slightly twist a fact for the sake of a pungent phrase.

Mr. Stolberg was one of the earliest liberals to recognize the dangers of Communist infiltration in the labor movement, and he devoted considerable attention to this in his book on the C.I.O. So much, in fact, that he was assailed by John L. Lewis, then the head of the C. I. O.

Mr. Stolberg was born in Munich in 1891. He came to the United States in 1903 after attending the Munich Gymnasium and continued his studies here. He was graduated from Harvard University in 1913 with a Bachelor of Arts degree, then did graduate work for a [illegible]

After two years as an instructor in sociology and director of the School of Social Work at the University of Oklahoma, he went to the University of Kansas to teach sociology. In 1921-'22 he was in charge of vocational placement work for the Chicago public high schools. In 1922-'28 he was editor of "The Journal of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen." After two years of free-lancing, he served from 1925 to 1927 as chairman of the New York League for Industrial Democracy, and in 1928-'29 as an associate editor of "The Bookman." He was a columnist for The New York Post in 1932-'33.

Mr. Stolberg had been a member of the International Committee of Inquiry which investigated charges made in 1937 in Moscow against Leon Trotsky, when Trotsky was found guilty in absentia of a conspiracy to overthrow the Soviet government and to assassinate Stalin. The committee went to Mexico and interviewed Trotsky, in exile there, and thereafter absolved him of the Moscow charges.

Mr. Stolberg married Mary Fox in 1925. They were divorced in 1929. They had one son, David Fox Stolberg.

Cabinet Of 36 To Direct U.J.A. Drive For Vast Sum

Edward M. M. Warburg, general chairman of the United Jewish Appeal, announced the establishment of a campaign cabinet of thirty-six community leaders who will direct the Appeal's drive for $208,684,577 to meet Jewish needs throughout the world, with special emphasis on Israel.

Speaking at the Appeal's offices at 165 West Forty-sixth Street, New York, Mr. Warburg said that Morris W. Berinstein, vice-president of the Syracuse (N. Y.) Jewish Welfare Federation, would head the cabinet. The Appeal's beneficiaries are the United Palestine Appeal, the principal constituent, the Joint Distribution Committee and the United Service for New Americans.

In calling attention to Israel's acute need for food, machinery and raw materials to take care of its record influx of immigrants, Mr. Warburg emphasized a "now or never" urgency concerning the relief work of the Appeal. He cited Jews who desire to leave the East European countries, saying "the 'now or never' is to get them out before the whims of Government close them off."

"Every understanding person in the United States," he asserted, "is fully aware that unless we act now to meet our responsibilities we may be overwhelmed by the deepening of present world tensions."

Mr. Warburg said that the Appeal's campaign this year "is in a race against time to rescue the stranded, resettle the uprooted and rebuild the broken; in every sense, this is a now or never drive and everything that we are doing is on a now or never basis."

He pointed out that large Jewish populations in Rumania, Iraq, Iran and Libya must be transferred to Israel before "emigration deadlines in these countries run [illegible] Iraq, he added, 70,000 Jews [illegible] March 1, which the Iraqi Government has set as registration deadline for further Jewish emigration to Israel."

He warned that unless Jewish communities throughout the country "measure up to the special needs of the crisis facing the

Warns On Terms Of Peace With Germany

The American Jewish Committee warned that any proposed peace treaty with Germany must contain safeguards that will prevent her from ever becoming "an enemy of democracy." The Committee adopted a program that will be submitted to the United States Government to be considered for inclusion in any treaty reached with Germany.

The program, unanimously adopted by 400 delegates at the final sessions of the forty-fourth annual meeting of the committee at the Commodore Hotel, in New York, called for the creation of an international commission to deal with violations of human rights. This body would be appointed by the United Nations or the International Court of Justice and individuals, private groups or interested states could appeal to it.

The Committee program urged further that any proposed peace treaty "insure that Germany agree to observe human rights and fundamental freedoms as contained in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and in the United Nations Convention on Genocide; that guarantees of these rights be incorporated into Germany's basic law and future constitution." It was also proposed that "the Federal Republic of Germany adhere to the convention proposed by the Consultative Assembly of the Council of Europe for the protection of human right and fundamental freedoms on that continent."

A sub-committee headed by Herman A. Gray, Professor of Economics at New York University, submitted the program.

In another unanimously adopted resolution, the conference set forth the importance of stimulating democratic practices and principles in Germany and urged that the United States educational program in that country be expanded and intensified. The delegates also urged immediate ratification of the

N. Y. Central Counsel Began As Stenographer

Jacob Aronson, sixty-four, who retired during January as vice-president and general counsel of the New York Central System, died at his home, 16 Chesterfield Road, Scarsdale, N. Y.

He had been for several years until November 15, 1950, chairman of the executive board of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations. At the organization's recent convention in Cleveland, Ohio, he was made honorary board chairman. He was one of the creators of the rabbinical pension plan administered by the union and a legal adviser to its pension board.

Mr. Aronson had been with the railroad forty-four years and had represented it and other railroads in many important cases. Gustav Metzman, president of the New York Central, said that the entire industry will feel greatly his death and described him as an attorney of "outstanding ability" who had served the railroads with "distinction."

Mr. Aronson was head of the railroad's law department since 1933 as a vice-president and was general counsel since 1939. He started with the railroad as a stenographer. He studied law evenings at Brooklyn Law School, graduating in 1906. In 1934 the school conferred upon him the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws.

Mr. Aronson was chief counsel for the Eastern railroads in the railway wage cases of 1921 and 1922, and was chief counsel for all American railroads in the wage cases of 1943 and 1944. He was the counsel in the railroad pension case of 1934 and took part in the argument before the United States Supreme Court, says the New York Herald Tribune. He also argued before the Supreme Court the railroads' position in the Pullman acquisition case of 1945. Mr. Aronson,

Zealots In Israel Revive Fight Over Sabbath

A group of religious zealots revived the struggle over the Sabbath observance in Israel by attempting to burn automobiles, trucks and a bus parked in the streets of Jerusalem. The acts were the work of a group known as Brith Hakanaim (Union of Zealots), four of whose members, ranging in age from 14 to 32, were remanded for seven days when they appeared in court charged with arson. Pamphlets signed by the group threatening violence to "desecrators of the Sabbath," were found near the burning cars.

A letter addressed to the driver of a passenger bus set on fire was pinned to the seat of another bus near by. It said the group would take steps against the driver's wife and child if he continued to play his radio on the Sabbath.

The incidents occurred near Mea Shearim, the Jerusalem Orthodox quarter, where the kaftans (long garments) on young and old bear witness to their or their forebears' upbringing in the ghettos of Eastern Europe.

Persons who have driven into Mea Shearim inadvertently on the Sabbath have been stoned in their cars. The municipality has posted signs at the boundaries warning against driving farther on the Sabbath. The zealots appear now to have taken their fight for strictest observance of the biblical laws concerning the Sabbath outside their own quarter, and conceivably they could bring the dormant struggle between the Orthodox Bloc and the rest of the country to a climax.

These are believed to have been encouraged by the recent election of an Orthodox Mayor in Jerusalem. The bloc received only 15 per cent of the votes in the municipal elections, but in an obvious maneuver against the Socialist, Mapai, Mapam parties, the other center and right-wing groups gave sufficient support for the election of Shlomo Zalman Shagrai as Mayor.

The Sabbath observance is only one facet, but perhaps the most important of the Orthodox Bloc's fight to base Israel on the laws interpreted by the rabbinate from the Bible. There are three other major issues — the powers of the rabbinical courts that still retain authority on all questions of personal status, religious education, and kosher food.

The Bloc's participation in the

W.J.C. Is Anxious Over Policy To Rearm Germany

The National Council of the World Jewish Congress British Section, meeting in London, England, expressed its "profound anxiety regarding, and its condemnation of, the policy of the rearmament of Germany, entailing as it must the revival of German military nationalism which has proved so great a menace to the peaceful democratic development of mankind."

"Jews", the resolution continues, "will not forget that those elements, from which the German General Staff was drawn, played a predominant part in supporting Hitler in his policy of destroying democracy in Europe and elsewhere, in building Nazi Germany, and in the unspeakable massacre of millions of innocent men, women and children by the German Third Reich. The National Council of the World Jewish Congress British Section therefore earnestly urges the Governments which fought as Allies to destroy German nationalism to reconsider their policy in this regard."

A. L. Easterman, political director (London) of the World Jewish Congress, said there was little doubt that Western Germany would very soon be accorded the maximum of independence, whether by treaty or on a contractual basis. Allied control would be almost completely withdrawn. One of the consequences of this basic change would be that the Jewish people would no longer be able to rely on Allied support to obtain satisfaction of their claims against Germany. It was vitally necessary for the Jewish people, in the changed political conditions, to review the policy of and the methods whereby Germany should be pressed to recognise responsibility for the anti-Jewish crimes of the German Third Reich and to demonstrate in a practical way their obligation to

Draft U.S.-Israel Aid And Training Plan

Israelis will receive specialized training in the United States in a number of trades and industries under an agreement now being drafted, Foreign Minister Moshe Sharett informed the Knesset (Parliament). Mr. Sharett reported that Israel had been invited to submit proposals for technical aid in order to benefit from allocations which might be made under the American Point Four program to aid underdeveloped countries. Aid to Israel referred to in the agreement will include sending experts from the United States to Israel to give instruction in specific trades; sending trainees and qualified persons from Israel to the U.S. to gain proficiency and to specialize in certain trades; and providing equipment for industrial research.

Mr. Sharett emphasized that the project concentrates much more on sending people from Israel to America to gain proficiency than bringing American experts to Israel, although "such experts themselves are of the utmost importance to us". He added that the proposals submitted by Israel had not yet been approved. Israel suggested that experts be brought over to advise on road construction, irrigation methods, railways, transport of citrus fruit and organization of public health and technical training. The Government of Israel wants to send people to America to specialize in sea-fishing, railways, the ceramic industry, longshoremanship and ship repairs. Israel also submitted a proposal regarding the provision of equipment for research into the possibility of exploiting bitumen stone for the extraction of fuel.

He denied rumors that acceptance of U.S. aid involved payment by Israel of a political price to the United States and said that such stories "are without foundation and are to be regarded as a figment of the imagination. Neither in the text of the agreement, nor in the negotiations has there been any mention whatsoever of any conditions of political repayment in any form whatsoever," Mr. Sharett said. Acceptance of the aid would require the signing of the special agreement which is now being drafted. It refers to the use to which the monies will be put, their effective expenditure and the submission of reports on activities carried out with these funds. Publicity must be given to the projects and their execution at various stages. Israel would have to assist in the development requirements of other countries receiving U.S. technical aid by sending experts in agreed trades if such experts are at Israel's disposal.

DRAFT U.S.

The agreement also requires coordination between projects to be carried out under this arrangement with the United States and activities carried out with aid sums allocated by United Nations sources in order to ensure efficiency and eliminate duplication and waste.

"It's not how much your income is . . . it's how you use it." That is one of the chief points made in the B of M's bright little booklet on Personal Planning. No matter what you earn — $25 a week or $10,000 a year — this new, practical approach to money management can help you get 100-cents' worth of value for every dollar you earn.

There's no money magic to it — it can't make $2,000 go as far as $3,000 — but it can give you complete mastery over your own money ... and put the facilities of a great savings institution at your service in attaining it.

Personal Planning is a completely personal thing. You will be the architect — with an assist from the Bank of Montreal. You'll tailor your plan to fit your income, your hopes, your dreams. The outcome will be strictly up to you.

Decide right now to find out how Personal Planning can be your blueprint for a brighter, more assured future. Ask for the introductory booklet "Personal Planning for Successful Home-makers" at your nearest branch of "MY BANK." There's no obligation ... except to yourself.

Named New Head Of JDC Overseas

Moses W. Beckelman, active for more than ten years on behalf of needy Jews abroad, has been named Joint Distribution Committee director-general for overseas operations for 1951 to administer aid programs on behalf of some 400,000 Jews in Europe, Moslem areas, and Israel, it was announced by Moses A. Leavitt, JDC executive vice-chairman. Dr. Joseph J. Schwartz, overseas head for the past ten years, who was re-elected director-general at the 36th annual meeting, was granted leave to assume his new post as executive vice-chairman of the 1951 campaign of the United Jewish Appeal, from which JDC receives its funds.

Beckelman directed JDC programs on behalf of Jews in the Baltic states, later doing a survey on refugee problems in South America. After service with UNRRA, during which he directed the latter agency's first refugee camp, near Casablanca, North Africa, he became assistant director of the Intergovernmental Committee on Refugees, visiting Europe, Africa and China. He rejoined the Paris headquarters of the JDC as second in command in 1946. During the coming year, Beckelman will administer relief and rehabilitation programs on behalf of Jews in France, Hungary, DP Europe, as well as the Moslem countries of North Africa and Iran. In addition, he will supervise JDC's emigration program, under which an estimated 25,000 Jews from Europe will be aided to reach the United States, Canada, Australia and other countries. He will also assume special responsibility for JDC's increased aid to aged, ill and handicapped newcomers to Israel, through the organization known as Malben. With some 3,000 "hard cores" already under its care, Malben expects to expand its programs, and to include more than 6,000 in its programs before the end of 1951.

She was presented with a set of silver flatware by the hostess. Vari-coloured seasonal flowers, and white lighted tapers, decorated the table.

BRANDEIS GETS FIRST NEW TALMUD REPRINT

The first Babylonian Talmud volumes printed in Europe since the advent of the Nazi regime were received by Brandeis University, in Waltham, Mass., the first nonsectarian institution of higher learning in the Western Hemisphere to be established under Jewish sponsorship. Comprising nineteen leather-bound volumes, the Talmud was reprinted in Germany by the Joint Distribution Committee with the help of the United States Army, European Quartermaster Depot. The purpose of the reprinting was to alleviate the dearth of Jewish books of higher learning caused by the war and the Nazi atrocities during which the Talmud was burned. At Brandeis University the volumes will be displayed in the Library on the desk of the late U. S. Supreme Court Justice Louis Dembitz Brandeis, for whom the two-year-old institution is named. A limited number of editions of the Talmud was sent to America for distribution to educational centers, as a token of appreciation of the help of American Jewry to the rehabilitation of the religious and spiritual life of Jewry abroad.

ORT Alters Program, Gets JDC Funds

The Joint Distribution Committee will provide up to $950,000 in 1951 for the work of ORT (Organization for Rehabilitation through Training), principal agency offering vocational training to Jews overseas, according to an agreement signed at JDC headquarters, 270 Madison Avenue, New York, by Prof. William Haber and Dr. Aron Syngalowski, representing ORT; and Moses A. Leavitt, executive vice-chairman of the JDC, major American agency aiding distressed Jews aboard. Prof. Haber is president of the American ORT Federation, and Dr. Syngalowski, who returned to Europe, is chairman of the executive committee of the World ORT Union.

The current pact provides that ORT will not conduct an independent fund-raising campaign in the United States, but that funds for its programs in Europe and North Africa will be made available from the income which JDC will receive during the coming year from the United Jewish Appeal. Similar agreements between JDC and ORT have been reached annually since 1947. Other provisions stipulate that almost all of JDC direct vocational training activities be carried on through ORT. JDC, however, will continue to support other direct economic reconstruction efforts, including loan banks, producers' co-operatives, and other activities not embraced by the ORT program.

In 1950, according to ORT officials, the organization afforded training to 23,000 students in vocational training installations in 22 countries. More than 5,000 students were graduated, while some 9,000 received partial training prior to emigration. The balance of the student body will continue training during 1951. The vocational training assistance through ORT represents one aspect of JDC's program for 1951, during which it will continue its broad scale relief, reconstruction and resettlement efforts on behalf of more than 400,000 needy Jews in Europe, Moslem areas and Israel. JDC's budgetary requirements for its activities during 1951 total $22,350,000.

In 1950, JDC's reconstruction projects aided more than 40,000 heads of families in Europe, North Africa and the Near East. Including dependents, the numbers assisted totalled nearly 100,000 men, women and children. ORT's vocational training operations underwent sharp alterations during the past year, the agency's officials noted, with a considerable expansion in North Africa and Iran. In Iran, where the first ORT trade school was established only last fall, there are already training workshops for carpenters and masons and for agricultural mechanics, with a school soon to be opened to train girls in sewing, cutting and shirtmaking. ORT will also continue its programs in Western Europe, where the problem is one of long term rehabilitation rather than relief. Because of the closing of many DP camps and the emigration of thousands of former Jewish DP's to Israel, the agency's work is no longer dominated by short term training courses.

McDonald Heads Bond Council

James G. McDonald, who resigned recently as the first American Ambassador to Israel, has accepted the chairmanship of the advisory council for the $500,000,000 bond issue to be floated in the United States by the government of Israel, it was announced by Henry Montor, chief executive officer of the American Financial and Development Corporation for Israel.

The corporation was established to direct and manage the sale of Israel's bonds in the U. S. Mr. McDonald, who was stationed in Tel Aviv for two and a half years, declared that he had accepted the post because "the economic development of Israel is a matter of direct concern to all Americans who are interested in strengthening the cause of democracy in the Middle East and other parts of the world."

The Council will consist of leading Americans who are interested in extending moral support to the public through the American Financial and Development Corporation for Israel, with headquarters at 2 Park Avenue, New York. Branches of the bond organization are being set up in fifty cities. The bond campaign will begin May 1.

MIZRACHI TO BUILD COLLEGE NEAR TEL AVIV

Plans for the establishment of a new college of arts and sciences in Israel under the auspices of the Mizrachi Organization of America were announced in New York at a meeting of the founders' committee at the Commodore Hotel. The college will be on a forty-acre site at Ramat Gan, a suburb of Tel Aviv, acording to Dr. Pinkhos Churgin, national president of the religious-Zionist organization and dean of the Teachers Institute of Yeshiva University in New York. The land is being provided by the Jewish National Fund. The education and expansion program of Mizrachi will give $100,000 to the project.

The central building on the campus will cost $1,500,000, Dr. Churgin reported. He added that American architects were preparing plans. American educators are being recruited as academic advisors to the new institution. The committee will be headed by Prof. Jekuthiel Ginsburg, of the Science Department at Yeshiva University.

The projected college will resemble American institutions in its main features but will differ insofar as the pattern of secondary education in Israel differs from the program in America, Dr. Churgin said. The Israeli college will offer courses of study leading to the degrees of Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science, Master of Arts and Master of Science.

Genocide Convention by the Senate.

In another resolution, which was telegraphed to President Truman, they praised the Presidential Commission on Internal Security and Individual Rights and its personnel as answering "the crucial need today for a clear definition of the exact balance that should obtain between American national security and freedom."

"This action," the resolution said, "is a heartening assurance of our nation's sincere regard for fundamental freedoms and its abiding conviction that individual differences, far from weakening or menacing our society, constitute its fundamental core and bulwark."

Jacob Blaustein, Baltimore industrialist, was elected to his third term as president.

Modern Goods For Home Shown First Time Here

Modern furniture, rugs and draperies by leading designers in Sweden, the United States and Canada, were on display in this country for the first time when Henry Morgan and Co., Ltd. officially opened the store's re-decorated seventh floor this week in Montreal.

At a special preview attended by Gustaf Lundh, Swedish vice-consul in Montreal, and Hugo Holmquist, Swedish trade agent here, Henry Morgan, president of the store, paid tribute to Swedish designing and listed Sweden as "the cradle of modern designing today."

Of particular interest to previewers were the rugs and co-ordinated draperies designed by Sigvard Bernadotte, second son of the present King of Sweden, which are being shown in Canada for the first time. The rugs vary in size from four-by-six mats to large room-sized carpets. The designs, all contemporary, are hand-woven.

Highlight of the Bernadotte display was a small carpet called the "Celebration Rug" which was patterned on a modern symbolic variation of the tree of life — a ceremonial rug used in Sweden at weddings, christenings and other significant occasions.

United States designers were represented by a Rohjohn-Gibbings dining room suite in sorrel walnut, designed by Paul Frankl. The dining table and buffet top of bleached, heat-resisting cork made a sharp contrast to the cordovan finish mahogany legs.

Among the modern Canadian furniture was a group of tables, chairs and desks, designed and made in Montreal by Jacques Beaulieu, who recently won the second grand prize of the Applied Arts Awards of the Province of Quebec. He is a graduate of l'Ecole du Meuble.

Commentaries

By Dr. Harry J. Stern, Rabbi

"I am the Lord Thy God, Who Brought Thee Out From The Land Of Egypt" — Ex. 20.1

The first commandment proclaims God's existence. It is part of the Ten Commandments and not a preface, as some non-Jewish commentators would explain it to be. "What is God?" It is not a new question, but one difficult to answer. An exquisite Oriental fable tells of a sage who had been meditating vainly for days and weeks on the question, "What is God?", and one day while walking along the seashore, he saw children busying themselves by digging holes in the sand and pouring into them water from the sea. "What are you doing there?" he asked them. They answered: "We want to empty the sea of its water." "Oh, you little fools!" he exclaimed with a smile. But suddenly his smile vanished in serious thought. Am I not as foolish as these children? How can I with my small brain, hope to grasp the infinite nature of God?

How can I, mortal man really define God? I can hardly understand the speck of dust which presents mysteries of whirling molecules and atoms which even the great physicists cannot solve. But, while I cannot define what God is, I say, God is! I experience the existence of God in (1) nature, (2) history, (3) in life, and (4) in the hunger for a God. Look about the universe. See the order, the unity, the harmony. Things move according to law: the rising and setting of the sun, the succession of the seasons, the movements of the planets. The psalmist saw God in nature when he exclaimed: "The heavens declare the glory of God and the firmament showeth His handiwork."

History shows us that there is some Administrator directing the events of centuries. There is purpose, an outreaching in the world. That God exists is shown by life itself! Scientists cannot create life. An ancient rabbi put it as follows: If all the sages of the world tried to create the wing of a little insect they would be unable to do so. And God is, because the individual yearns for a power and a reality outside himself.

It is interesting that this reality which we designate God has never been defined in Judaism. Judaism spoke of the eternal spirit, the source of nature and life, but it has ever been the conviction of our people never to dogmatize about God. Therefore the God concept of the Jew can never be in conflict with science. As the Jewish mind advanced, so his God concept advanced. It would be correct to say that man fashioned God in his own image. After all, to give expression as to the existence of God, man could only speak in human tongue and in human thought. If the language of the day is scientific we can best express God in the phraseology of the scientist. Especially can we Jews do that because we have always opposed a dogmatization of God.

A Talmudic teacher says that when Moses asked to be allowed to see the divine glory of God he was told that he might see God's acts but not His face. I see God in the acts of kindliness between man and man. I find God in the love of a mother's kiss, in the warm embrace of a child's tenderness. I find God in the tear of pity, in the sympathy we have for others, in heroism, in the smile, in the helping hand we give to the crushed upon life's highway. Indeed, God is! What God is we need not define. Even as my human personality which motivates my life does exist and baffles definition, so God I experience though I cannot define this Reality. "He is my God, the Eternal God."

Government with the dominant Mapai party has been bought at a price of retaining the status quo on these issues. Thus, the Orthodox parties have the right to maintain religious schools. Army hospitals and other state institutions serve only kosher food and the Government imports only kosher meat despite the fact that more than one-tenth of Israel's population is non-Jewish and such meats have proved to be far more expensive than other supplies that were available.

But the Orthodox leaders so far have failed to win their case that verbal agreements covering these points should be written into law. They have been divided among themselves on whether to withdraw from the Government and force new elections, possibly because they know the Socialist Premier David Ben-Gurion would not fight them at the polls on these grounds, but on issues of his own choosing, such as immigration and defense.

indemnify the Jews for the losses they had sustained.

Jewish claims against Germany would not be allowed to go by default. It was the duty of the Allied powers to make fulfillment of such obligations a condition of Germany's re-entry into the family of nations. One of the crucial questions was German rearmament, which could only mean the recreation of the German military spirit and the revival of the notorious German General Staff, the quintessence of German reactionary nationalism and militarism which Hitler expressed so well. German generals, Mr. Easterman said, were not only "military boys", but also politicians with all the "philosophy" of which the Jews in particular had such bitter experience. The attitude of the World Jewish Congress in this matter was quite clear, he said. They had repeatedly expressed their strongest opposition to the rearming of Germany and all its implications. The time had now come to draw once more the attention of the Allied powers to the dangers involved.

The national campaign cabinet was formed for the first time last year with a personnel of fifteen, but Mr. Warburg said it had been enlarged to thirty-six members drawn from eight key cities to give wider participation to communities in the planning and direction of the campaign.

He also announced that a national conference to open the actual drive will be held in Miami on February 16, 17 and 18.
